BURGLAR FOUND IN APARTMENTS

"Beat it or I'll pour you full of lead" was the startling command that greeted George W. Parlow as he entered his rooms in the Peery apartment.

ments, last evening at 9:45 o'clock. As the words were spoken seriously, Mr. Parlow did as he was told and, while in search for assistance to capture the intruder, the burglar left the place.

Patrolman Jerry Kellher responded to Parlow's call and started an investigation of the premises.

It is believed that two men entered the rooms shortly before the arrival of Parlow and were frightened by the entrance of the owner. Others living in the apartments had heard two men knock at the door and then enter the rooms shortly before Parlow received the startling command.

Mr. Parlow reported that nothing had been taken from his rooms.

W.W. BROWNING IS TO BE THE POSTMASTER

W. W. Browning has been selected as postmaster for Ogden and his name has been sent to the national Democratic committee at Washington to be handed to President Wilson, as having the endorsement of W. R. Wallace, national committeeman, and Samuel Thurman, state chairman of the Democratic party of Utah.

S. S. Smith, who is a candidate for the office, says he will carry the contest to the national committee, hoping to set aside the decision of this Utah leaders. However, definite plans have not been made and it cannot be said what will be the first step taken. Mr. Thurman and Mr. Wallace arrived at a decision in Salt Lake yesterday afternoon but declined to make a public statement respecting the choice. This morning W. W. Browning received information from the national committeeman that his name will be endorsed for the postmastership. Mr. Smith was also advised that he would not be endorsed. J. L. Herrick and others who also were candidates, were not made aware that Mr. Browning had been selected.

There were a number of applicants for the position but the contest finally simmered down to a choice between Browning, Smith and Herrick, all of whom are recognized Democrats of long standing. Prior to the campaign of last fall Mr. Browning had acted as county chairman of the Democratic central committee for a number of years. Mr. Smith acting in that capacity last year, and the two men claimed priority of right for the postmastership by reason of their services in that capacity, coupled of course with the claim that they both were qualified to fill the position. Mr. Herrick was strongly endorsed by many good citizens of Ogden and he because of his stalwart democracy and also as a citizen of good standing in Ogden. It is said, however, that the state chairman and national committeeman did not take kindly to Herrick because he had in the past few years been identified with Colorado interests and had become a resident of that state.

PETER BUTLER FROM OGDEN TO A PEAK ABOVE THE CLOUDS

Peter Butler was arraigned in Judge J. A. Howell's division of the district court this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary in the third degree, whereupon the court set Friday morning at 10 o'clock as the time to pass sentence.

Butler requested the court to hurry up with the sentence as he desired to get to serving time as early as possible. The court advised him that Friday is the earliest date under the law for the passing of the sentence. Butler was content and thanked the judge.

The information charged Butler with the burglary of the home of Mrs. Lettie A. Maginnis May 12, 1913, alleging that on the occasion of the burglary he stole a silver sugar bowl and a hand satchel.

It will be recalled that Butler was captured by former Councilman Geo. Wilson and others in the basement of the new store which is being built by the Wilson brothers on West 28th street, after a lively encounter in which the man undertook to escape. Butler bore the marks of the encounter this morning as he faced the court. A part of his head was in bandages and he looked as though he had been roughly handled.

however, to build a new road for a short distance.

To arouse enthusiasm for the proposition an excursion has been planned in which the county commissioners, autoists and the general public are invited to participate. A trip will be made over the proposed route in automobiles as far as the roads will permit and scouting parties will go on farther to map out possible roads. A photographer will be taken along to secure views of the scenery and the pictures will be placed on exhibition.

Ben Lomond is the mountain peak directly to the north of the city. From its peak, the beholder looks into Wyoming and over the entire state of Utah and into Idaho on the north. It offers a most favorable location for a resort for autoists. The road to the point must approach from the east as the cliffs prevent road-making from this side of the mountain.

"A road to that peak would attract autoists from all parts of the western country and no transcontinental tourist would pass by Ogden without making the visit to the point," said D. R. Roberts in speaking of the project today. "From the moment that road is completed, Ogden would be talked about and that would be most valuable publicity. Present investigations have disclosed the feasibility of the plans and we hope to arouse enough enthusiasm by an excursion over the site to secure the building of the road. It would be one of the most famous auto trips in America."
